Police: Uninvited Relatives Don't Count as Intruders

Homeowners in Illinois say they awoke to find an intruder sitting on their stairs and playing with their cat. After telling Daniel Bailey, 32, to leave, they found their Christmas-tree lights on, candles lit, the living-room TV on and a half-eaten coffee cake on the kitchen counter. Police say Bailey — who also supposedly played a round of darts in the garage — ran out of gas, knocked on their door and went inside when no one answered. (EXPRESS)

Newtown Funerals a Grim Refrain

As more are laid to rest, first responders grapple with grief

Newtown, Conn.

A season that should be a time of joy has been marked by heart-wrenching loss in Newtown, as more victims from the massacre of 20 children and seven adults are laid to rest.

Mourners weathered a fourth day of funerals Thursday, six days after a 20-year-old gunman killed his mother at home, 20 children and six adults at the school and himself for reasons still unknown. Mourners laid to rest Catherine Hubbard, Benjamin Wheeler, Jesse Lewis and Allison Wyatt, all 6 years old; and Grace McDonnell, 7. More tributes were scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

A service was held in Katonah, N.Y., for teacher Anne Marie Murphy, 52, who authorities believe

"Like Jesus, Annie laid down her life for her friends," Dolan said.

Gov. Dannel Malloy has asked people across Connecticut to observe a moment of silence at 9:30 a.m. Friday, which will mark a week since the shootings. House GOP to Vote On Fiscal-Cliff Plan

Democrats vow to let 'Plan B' bill die in Senate without vote

Washington

The Republican-controlled House pushed ahead Thursday with a bill that would raise taxes on people earning more than $1 million a year as hopes faded for a pre-Christmas deal between President Barack Obama and Speaker John Boehner to avert the so-called fiscal cliff.

House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va., said the GOP has enough votes to pass the bill dubbed "Plan B" by Boehner.

"We, as Republicans, have taken concrete actions to avoid the fiscal cliff," Cantor said.

The Votes

House Speaker John Boehner worked Thursday to gather support for his "Plan B" legislation. The House was scheduled to vote later in the night — after Express' deadline — on that bill and a companion bill that would replace cuts in the Pentagon and some domestic programs with reductions elsewhere in the budget. (AP)

Democratic leaders vowed to let the House measure die in the Senate without a vote and urged Boehner to return to the negotiating table. As a grand bargain to avoid the fiscal cliff, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., said lawmakers would return after the holiday to try again. ANDREW TAYLOR (AP)

A Health Crisis Spreads in Syria

Serious injuries to civilians spike as civil war stretches on

Atmeh, Syria

A baby boy joined the ranks of Syria's tens of thousands of war wounded when a missile fired by Bashar Assad's air force slammed into his family home and shrapnel pierced his skull.

Four-month-old Fahed Darwish suffered brain damage and, like thousands of others seriously hurt in the civil war, will likely need care well after the fighting is over. That's something doctors say a post-conflict Syria won't be able to provide.

has been a sharp spike in serious injuries since the summer, when the regime began bombing rebel-held areas from the air, and doctors say a majority of the wounded they now treat are civilians.

This week, Fahed was recovering from brain surgery in an intensive care unit, watched over by Mariam, 22, his distraught mother.

Rock Stars More Likely To Die Early, Study Says

London

Rock 'n' roll will never die — but it's a hazardous occupation.

An academic study published Thursday confirms that rock and pop musicians are more likely to die prematurely than the general population and finds that solo artists are twice as likely to die young as members of bands.

Researchers from Liverpool John Moores University and Britain's Health Department studied 1,489 rock, pop, punk, R&B, rap and New Age stars who gained fame between 1956 and 2006, from Elvis to the Arctic Monkeys.

The study suggests that the infamous rock 'n' roll lifestyle may not be entirely to blame.

Living Legends

Researchers dismissed the "fanciful but unsubstantiated" popular myth that rock stars tend to die at age 27 — as Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, Kurt Cobain and Amy Winehouse all did. The average age of death was 45.2 years for North American stars and 39.6 for European ones, a study released Thursday found. (AP)

Researchers also looked for the first time at how "adverse childhood experiences," such as physical or sexual abuse, affected stars later. They found that performers who had at least one such experience were more likely to die from drug and alcohol use or related causes. (AP)

Better Luck Next Time?

The Maya never really said this was the end. But that didn't dissuade believers.

Merida, Mexico

The crystal skulls have spoken: The world is not going to end.

American seer Star Johnsen-Moser led a whooping, dancing, drum-beating ceremony Thursday in the heart of Mayan territory to consult several life-size crystal skulls, which adherents claim were passed down by the ancient Maya.

The skulls weren't the only inheritances left by the ancient civilization that have been making waves this week: The supposed end of the Mayan long-count calendar on Friday prompted a wave of doomsday speculation across the globe.

"This is not the end of the world, this is the beginning of the new world," Johnsen-Moser said at a gathering in Merida of hundreds of spiritualists. "It is most important that we hold a positive, beautiful reality for ourselves and our planet ... Fear is out of place."

The supposed 5 a.m. Friday doomsday hour had already arrived in several parts of the world with no sign of the apocalypse.

The social network Imgur posted photos of clocks turning midnight in the Asia-Pacific region with messages such as: "The world has not ended. Sincerely, New Zealand."

In Merida, the celebration of the Michigan: Some schools have canceled classes Friday, citing threats and unrest partly because of "rumors about the Mayan calendar predictions," according to media reports.

Nevada: Las Vegas chapels have been marketing "Armageddon Wedding" packages for Dec. 21. The quickie wedding in that case could make for some short marriages. (EXPRESS/AP)

Glad Worship

People raise their hands at a Mayan ceremony in Bacuranao, Cuba, on Dec. 6. In Britain, hundreds of people have converged on Stonehenge to mark Dec. 21, which coincides with the winter solstice. (AP)

Ready To Float

At least two men in China expected a world-ending flood would occur Friday, timed with the conclusion of the Maya's 5,125-year-long calendar. One spent his life savings to build this diesel-powered arklike vessel. (AP)

Safe Spots To Hide

Julio Alvares built end-of-the-world refuges in Alto Paraiso, Brazil, over a huge quartz plate. In Russia, a Moscow museum offered salvation from the world's end in Josef Stalin's underground bunker for $1,500. (AP) cosmic dawn began with a fumbling of the sacred fire meant to honor the calendar's conclusion.

Gabriel Lemus, the white-haired guardian of the flame, burned his finger on the kindling and later had to scoop up a burning log that was knocked onto the wooden stage.

Still, the white-clad Lemus was convinced that it was a good start, as he was joined by about 1,000 other shamans, seers, stargazers, crystal enthusiasts, yogis, sufis and swamis at a convention center.

"It is a cosmic dawn," Lemus said. "We will recover the ability to communicate telepathically and levitate objects ... like our ancestors did."

Few here believed the world would end Friday; the summit is scheduled to run through Sunday.

Organizers of Yucatan's broader Mayan Culture Festival saw the need to answer the now-debunked idea that the Maya, who invented an amazingly accurate calendar almost 2,000 years ago, had somehow predicted the end of the world. The Maya measured time in 394-year periods known as baktuns. Anthropologists believe the 13th baktun ends around Dec. 21, and 13 is considered a sacred number for the Maya.

But archaeologists have uncovered Mayan glyphs that refer to dates far, far in the future, long beyond Dec. 21.

All of it amused Deyanira de Alvarez, a tourist who snapped a photo of the countdown clock in the Merida international airport showing a little more than two days left to "the galactic alignment."

"My grandmother says that people have been talking about [the world ending] ever since she was a little girl," De Alvarez said, "and look, grandma is still here."

Pepper Assault

You probably think you've experienced an epically bad commute. You won't feel that way after reading Andy Goodwin's story.

Two Mondays ago — of course it was a Monday — Goodwin glanced up from the Express crossword puzzle and saw two cops board his Red Line car at Forest Glen to confront a disoriented-looking man. Just as Goodwin decided to get out of the way by dashing to the doors, he says, the officers released pepper spray.

It missed their target, but the 56-year-old Aspen Hill resident got quite a mouthful, and as he stumbled into the next rail car, the symptoms kicked in.

"My whole throat reflexively clenched, and there was a stabbing pain in my eyes," Goodwin says. His fellow passengers instructed him to use his newspaper as a tissue to mop up "my ongoing cascade of tears and mucous." (Side note: Yet another reason to pick up Express!)

When it became clear he wasn't recovering, someone called the operator and helped him get off at the next stop, where the station manager gave him water to wash out his eyes.

About 90 minutes after the incident, Goodwin could see, speak and breathe normally again, and he continued on the train to his Rosslyn office. The only lasting effects were puffy eyes and some pain caused by clenching his upper body for so long.

But his questions from that morning linger, including the biggie: What had that man done that would justify the use of pepper spray in an enclosed space?

According to Metro Transit Police deputy chief Ronald Pavlik, the individual in question had been trying to enter an emergency stairwell at the station. The officers tried to get him to stop, but he wouldn't listen and started to get physical.

"He wanted to go hands-on," says Pavlik, who explains that there's no set policy for when to use pepper spray. "It's based on the circumstances and the size of the suspect and the size of the officer."

Although Pavlik says an indirect misting takes only a few minutes to wear off ("It's no different than eating spicy foods," he says), the police do consider who else nearby might catch a whiff. Even the officers themselves can be affected, Pavlik adds.

That's why Metro Transit Police use pepper spray only once every three to five months, he estimates, and almost always on platforms or mezzanines rather than in trains or buses.

So it's possible Goodwin just had awful luck. It's also possible the officers were a little trigger-happy with their pepper spray. From what Goodwin saw, the individual in question didn't look like much of a threat. And, according to Metro, he was evaluated and sent to a hospital, not jail.

I get that pepper spray is a critical tool for officers trying to maintain order while avoiding physical confrontations, and I'd much rather hear about errant aerosols than stray bullets. But it'd be nice to know there were real guidelines, so we could brace ourselves for a blast of pepper spray during the morning commute.

Until then, Goodwin's sticking with his new Red Line routine.

"You know some of the cars have little Plexiglas partitions? I'm probably better off there than where I was," Goodwin says. "Those are my seats from now on."

Hit-and-Run Crash Kills 1

D.C. police say a Northeast Washington man died after a hit-and-run accident late Tuesday night. The vehicle involved was seen speeding on 20th Street NE in the Langdon neighborhood, police said. The Dodge Charger sedan stopped abruptly and a female passenger got out; police said the car sped off and struck a pedestrian, later identified as 47-year-old John Schmidt. After the accident, the car backed up, the passenger got back inside, and the car sped away. (AP)

D.C. Adds 30K People in 2+ Years

Census data shows that since 2010, city population boomed

Washington

The District's boom keeps booming: Residents are flocking to the city at a blistering pace, according to new Census Bureau estimates.

In the 27 months since the 2010 Census was conducted, the bureau says, the D.C. population rose from 601,723 to 632,323. That's a rise of 30,600, exceeding the 1,000-resident-a-month pace that's been cited many times in the past year by Mayor Vincent Gray and his planning director Harriet Tregoning.

The District, ranked beside the 50 states, boasts the second-highest population growth rate (2.15 percent) from July 2011 to July 2012. Only oil-and-gas-booming North Dakota did better (2.17 percent). Note that the new figure is a dropoff from D.C.'s 2010-to-2012 growth, which was estimated at 2.7 percent.

Here's your standard disclaimer on D.C.-to-states comparisons: It's generally unwise to draw broad conclusions from them. Many cities are seeing population growth just as D.C. is seeing, but the figures released Thursday do not include more granular data necessary to compare the District's growth to other urban areas.

D.C.'s population rose from 601,723 to 632,323 over the course of 27 months.

From 2010 to 2011, 44 cities of 50,000 or more had higher growth rates than Washington did, including Austin, Texas; Denver; Raleigh, N.C.; Tampa, Fla.; and Atlanta.

But this much is beyond dispute: The Census Bureau now estimates the District's population now outranks a second state, Vermont, in addition to Wyoming. The Green Mountain State had 24,000 residents more than D.C. in 2010, but, according to estimates, it has added fewer than 300 residents since.

As the blog Greater Greater Washington notes, this means there are now at least six voting members of Congress who represent places with smaller populations than D.C.

All Signs Point to Go

RGIII will be starter Sunday vs. Eagles, barring any setback

Redskins

Washington Redskins quarterback Robert Griffin III will be healthy enough to play Sunday if he has no setbacks before the team's Week 16 matchup with the Philadelphia Eagles, coach Mike Shanahan said Thursday.

"I like what I see," Shanahan said. "If there's no setback, doctors feel that he'll be ready to go."

Griffin, who missed last Sunday's game with a sprained lateral collateral ligament in his right knee sustained in Week 14 against the Baltimore Ravens, went through his second straight day of full practice Thursday.

Doctors watched Griffin closely to see how his knee responded to Wednesday's practice, looking for swelling or increased pain after his most extensive action since he suffered the injury. But he didn't experience either and had a good practice Thursday, according to Shanahan.

"There was no setback today, so that's a good sign."

Griffin said he doesn't feel any weakness or limitation in his knee, and he appeared to move with ease. But Shanahan said, "Obviously, he's not 100 percent yet. I think everybody knows that. But like I said, if there's no setbacks, he'll be ready to go."

Three Things to Watch

1. Reid's Farewell

Andy Reid could be heading into his final home game as the Eagles' coach. Philadelphia is 4-10 and will miss the playoffs a second straight year. At 14 seasons, Reid is the longest-tenured NFL coach.

2. Who's Back?

For the Redskins, it's a second week in a row where it's uncertain whether RGIII will play. For the Eagles, LeSean McCoy and Michael Vick are back from concussions, but Nick Foles will still get the nod at quarterback.

3. Running Edge

The Redskins' top-ranked rushing attack (164.8 yards per game) faces the Eagles' 20th-ranked rush defense (122.0 ypg). No matter who is quarterback, Alfred Morris should see a lot of action.

(EXPRESS)

Bouncing Back: A year ago, Trent Williams was suspended for four games by the NFL for testing positive multiple times for marijuana. But Williams owned up to his mistake and is playing like a Pro Bowl left tackle. "I bust my butt all offseason with that on my mind, and it fueled my fire a lot of days," he said. "And to be able to come out and perform with the best in the league ... it'd just mean that all my hard work, it just wasn't [whistling] in the wind." (AP)

Making a Run at Redskins' Record

Rookie running back just 195 yards away from setting mark

Redskins

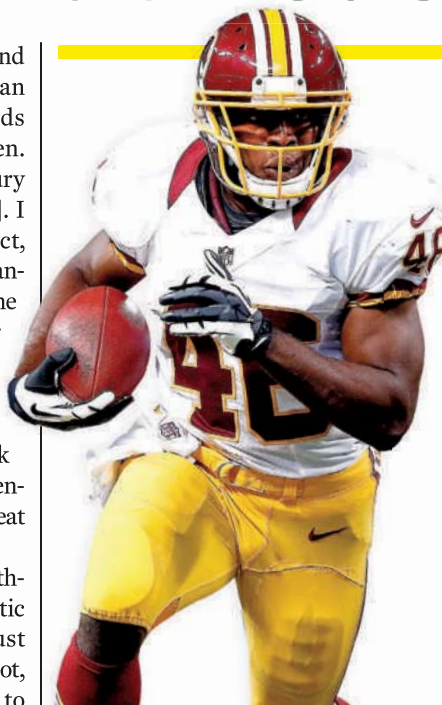

Robert Griffin III isn't the only rookie in the Redskins' backfield making his mark on the 2012 season.

Alfred Morris is just 195 yards away from breaking the Redskins' single-season rushing record of 1,516 yards set by Clinton Portis in 2005. With two games left, Morris' 1,322 yards already ranks seventh in team history. The only names in front of him are Portis, Stephen Davis, Terry Allen and John Riggins.

"I'm actually rooting for him,"

Portis told Holden Kushner and Danny Rouhier on 106.7 The Fan this week. "In my eyes, records are kind of meant to be broken. And just to even have the luxury of having it [was meaningful]. I think Alfred Morris is a class act, a young guy who came in and handled things properly and did it the right way. You never really hear him boast and brag about his accomplishments. And I think a lot of it is overshadowed by the great play of RGIII, but I think what they're doing as complimentary players to one another is great for the city."

Considering Morris was a sixth-round pick out of Florida Atlantic and entered training camp just trying to compete for a roster spot, it would be an understatement to

Chasing History

Running back Alfred Morris needs 195 yards to break the Redskins' record for most rushing yards in a season. Here are the 10 best rushing seasons in team history:

PLAYER	YEAR	GAMES	YDS
1. Clinton Portis	2005	16	1,516
2. Clinton Portis	2008	16	1,487
3. Stephen Davis	2001	16	1,432
4. Stephen Davis	1999	14	1,405
5. Terry Allen	1996	16	1,353
6. John Riggins	1983	15	1,347
7. Alfred Morris	2012	14	1,322
8. Stephen Davis	2000	15	1,318
9. Clinton Portis	2004	15	1,315
10. Terry Allen	1995	16	1,309

say the rookie running back has exceeded expectations.

But is Morris here for the long haul or is he just another product of a Mike Shanahan system?

While coaching the Denver Broncos, Shanahan helped turn Olandis Gary, Mike Anderson, Reuben Droughns and Tatum Bell into 1,000-yard rushers. And Terrell Davis, another sixth-round pick, became a 2,000-yard rusher and league MVP in Shanahan's system.

Only time will tell if Morris is just another product of Shanahan's system or if he's going to be the Redskins' next great running back. But if he averages 97.5 yards a game the last two weeks of the season, no one can doubt his standing in the Redskins' record books.

Latest Cancellations Put Season in Danger

NHL

The NHL could be one step away from canceling another hockey season because of a labor fight with the players.

In the latest round of cancellations, the NHL on Thursday wiped out all games through Jan. 14. More than 50 percent of the schedule has been lost, and the rest is now in great danger, too.

"I don't want to characterize what today's cancellations mean or don't mean," NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly told the Associated Press in an email. "I will stand on the announcement that was made."

So far, 625 regular-season games have been called off, including nearly 100 in the announcement made Thursday — the 96th day of the NHL's lockout. The New Year's Day Winter Classic and the All-Star Game also have been lost.

Commissioner Gary Bettman and the NHL have now canceled 625 games.

The NHL had previously canceled games through Dec. 30.

Daly said in a radio interview Wednesday that mid-January is likely the latest the sides could go to make a deal to save the season. When pressed, however, he said he expects the season will be played.

No drop-dead date has been announced by the NHL, which is the only North American professional sports league to cancel a season because of a labor dispute. The 2004-05 season was lost to a lockout. IRA PODELL (AP)

Hoyas Trying Not to Look Ahead

Thompson focusing on American game, not Big East changes

College Basketball

Last week, the buzz surrounding the Georgetown basketball program focused more on the Hoyas' planned departure from the Big East than on its upcoming matchup.

On some level, that remains the same even with crosstown foe American next on the Hoyas' docket. But coach John Thompson III is doing all he can to keep his 15th-ranked Hoyas focused on the present, including Saturday's noon tipoff at Verizon Center vs. the Eagles.

"Last week, a lot of things happened, obviously," Thompson said Thursday, alluding to the seven teams that announced plans to leave the Big East and start their own league. "In terms of as it relates to this team it was business as usual."

Winning has been business as usual for the Hoyas (9-1), who wrap up their nonconference schedule against American (4-7) before opening Big East play Jan. 5 at Marquette.

Coach John Thompson III and Georgetown are on a six-game winning streak.

Since losing to Indiana Nov. 20, Georgetown has won six straight.

Not that it's always been pretty. There was the self-described "ugly" 46-40 win over Towson, but Georgetown averaged 85 points in subsequent victories over Longwood and Western Carolina. Credit the recent scoring surge to the Hoyas taking advantage of 45 turnovers in that stretch more than their own half-court offense finding a consistency.

"I think we need to stay hungry on every end," junior forward Nate Lubick said. "We need to sharpen up what we do on offense."

That's certainly what Greg Whittington did against Western Carolina. The sophomore forward broke out of a shooting slump by making eight of 12 shots, including three 3-pointers, for a career-high 25 points. Whittington also grabbed 11 rebounds while fellow sophomore Jabril Trawick set a career-best with 14 points against the Catamounts.

Whatever Georgetown's offensive issues may be, they are largely of the fine-tuning variety. American's attack needs an overhaul. The Eagles average 55.7 points, ranking 338th nationally, and have lost six of eight games, including Tuesday's setback at lowly Hampton (2-7).

Georgetown owns a 44-8 all-time series record with eight straight wins, including last season's 81-55 victory behind Markel Starks' 18 points. But the Hoyas are not looking past the Eagles, despite the potential short- and long-term distractions.

"They are right down the street," Whittington said. "It's like a little rivalry we have in the D.C. area, but we come out and play hard no matter who it is."

After Saturday's matchup comes a longer than usual break between games. As for exactly how many days the players will be off, that's to be determined. "It depends on how Saturday goes," Thompson said. BENJAMIN STANDIG (FOR EXPRESS)

Terps Get Little Time to Relax Over Break

Despite 9-1 record, Turgeon pushing to see improvements

College Basketball

The Maryland campus is all but empty now. Final exams ended this week, but there is no winter break for the basketball team.

The closest thing to a vacation the players got was the eight-day stretch without a game on the schedule, a stretch that ends Friday. Coach Mark Turgeon left the players little time to relax, insisting the team had no reason to be overconfident despite its 9-1 record.

"They have to give me more," he said after a 33-point win over Monmouth last week. "The problem is everybody is telling them how good they are because of our record. They are listening to everybody else except for me. But we have a lot of time. We're going to be fine."

An unimposing nonconference schedule makes assessing the Terps' progress difficult. They have played only one ranked team — a 72-69 season-opening loss to then-No. 3 Kentucky.

Maryland's most impressive victories have been a 20-point rout of Northwestern in the ACC-Big Ten Challenge and a seven-point win over George Mason. The rest came against a collection of second- and third-tier schools from up and down the East Coast. Three more such games remain, including against Stony Brook on Friday, before conference play opens Jan. 5.

"Games like [Monmouth] make us better as a team, but we are definitely looking forward to starting our ACC play," sophomore Nick Faust said. "We are looking forward to playing bigger-name schools to really test our strengths as a team."

The bulk of the student body won't return to College Park until spring classes commence in late January, leaving more than a month with few distractions. The team is young. Four freshmen receive significant playing time, as do three sophomores. The youthful mistakes, like the torrents of turnovers that frustrate Turgeon, soon will not be so easily overcome.

"We're getting into the second half of the season. Freshmen aren't considered freshmen anymore. They're going to have to grow up," sophomore Dez Wells said. "But that's on the veterans. We have to demand more from them, and we have to stay on them." DEREK

LAURA MOSS

Danny Seo

ECO DECORATING EXPERT, AUTHOR

This time of year, the piles of crumpled wrapping paper, stacks of uneaten cookies and glut of made-in-China plastic toys could turn anyone into a Scrooge. But eco design pro Danny Seo — known for his appearances on the "Today" show and a line of sustainable decor for Marshalls and Home Goods — thinks the holidays can be both festive and earth-friendly. His new book, "Upcycling Celebrations" ($18, Running Press), shows and tells you how to craft dreidels from old jar lids, turn breath-mint tins into cool gift packaging and more.

Can you define upcycling for any newbies?

Well, the core word there is recycling. But the "up" part refers to a more positive spin on the word. If you recycle something, it's often downcycled into something inferior. But upcycling is like saying, "I'm cutting down this dead tree, but then I'm using the base to make a new dining-room table."

Are there still any misconceptions about the eco movement?

People think that being green costs more money. In some cases, that's true, like if you're buying a Lexus hybrid or Stella McCartney vegan shoes. But in many cases, eco is very economical now.

Are people moving toward celebrating greener holidays?

I think it's not even about being green so much as that, as a society, we're embracing so many green practices throughout our lives — bringing bags to the stores, crafting getting cool again.

How can you decorate for the holidays without destroying the planet?

Don't think of holiday decor as an elaborate set. You don't have to create a cinematic moment when a little bit of decorating goes a long way. I have projects for making a recycled cardboard gingerbread house or, my favorite, taking an old, ornate silver tray and painting it with chalkboard paint. Use the tray as a chalkboard to post your Christmas menu.

"The best thing you can do is get a real tree with a root ball, then plant it after the holidays."

Which is better for the earth — a live tree or a fake one?

Well, the best thing you can do is get a real tree with a root ball, then plant it after the holidays. But if you can't do that, call your local landscaping center and see if they'll rent you an outdoor pine tree for a few weeks.

How should I trim my tree?

Well, I love vintage holiday ornaments. My tree has a mix of natural things — leaves, berries — and flea-market glass ornaments. But using vintage lights doesn't make sense. Invest in LED lighting and it's much safer.

What about gifts? What's the key to giving things that are green?

I think it's about the quality of gifts. And then, I'm always a fan of gift cards. If someone has a choice between a box of questionable cookies and a gift card, well, I think you know what they'd really like.

Event Horizon | The Room Score

The Mansion on O Street, a quirkily decorated party space in Dupont Circle that's usually members-only, hosts an open house/sale from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday through Sunday. Expect deals on furniture, clothing and jewelry — plus the chance to chat up oddball volunteers dressed as Santa. 2020 O St. NW; 202-496-2020; Omansion.com.

1 Cocoa Motive

FORGET EVERYTHING you've learned about sharing if you're the recipient (or the would-be-gifter) of Droga Chocolates' sweets (at Drogachocolates.com, Bloomingdales and Anthropologie stores). Boxes of chocolate-covered treats — such as "Put Your Money on Honey" chocolate and sea salt-topped caramels ($17) — are rich and addictive. We don't blame you if you chomp the whole box in one sitting to confirm this for yourself.

Grab Bag

2 Away in a Menagerie

EVERY BAUBLE you dangle from a holiday tree branch doesn't need to be glitzy and garish. At Proper Topper (1350 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-842-3055), animal-shaped ornaments cut from recycled steel ($18-$22) would give any tannenbaum edgy, weathered charm. Friendly beasts range from an owl to a regionally apropos crab, shown.

3 Turkish Delightful

SHOULD PARIS DESIGNERS BE WORRYING about fashion competition from Istanbul? Oui, if they step into Bethesda's new Take 5 Boutique (4920 Fairmont Ave. NW; 301-500-0132), which sells top names from Turkey. The sleek shop traffics in East-meets-West designs, including Sertac Delibas' Hagia Sophia high heels ($325), jeweler Evren Kayar's tactile rings and Özgür Masur's femme evening wear — think a feathered miniskirt (shown, $470). It's all served up in a gallery-like space with honeyed wood floors, white walls and a pink pouf for shoe try-ons.

Deco Rations

DID A "BOARDWALK EMPIRE" or "Great Gatsby" antiheroine spill her jewelry box at GoodWood (1428 U St. NW; 202-986-3640)? You'll think so when you spot the retro-gone-rugged baubles by Jan Michaels. Bling that conjures flapper balls and gun molls include a brass "snakelace" (shown, $100), horn-shaped earrings ($67) and a coral ring ($30) worthy of a night at the speakeasy.

5 Petal Power

WHO DOESN'T love getting roses? That is, until they wilt and turn to crunchy reminders of our mortality. Show adoration with a longer-lasting alternative: Diptyque's new Rose Duet candle ($65, diptyqueparis.com). Inspired by the flower of the same name with bicolor petals, the new luminary is made from two different floral scents for a well-balanced bouquet.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

It has been a very tough year for me here in suburbia, so I really want to celebrate the end of 2012. Can you please recommend some shoes for a New Year's Eve black-tie gala in the city, complete with dinner and dancing? —PATRICIA Manolo says, as is always the case, the last few weeks of the year are filled to the bursting with events, which require substantial preparation and attention, such as the Christmas, the Eve of the New Year and the Mayan Calendar Apocalypse.

One minute you are trimming the Christmakwanzakkah tree and taking your little black dress to the seamstress for adjustments; the next you are stocking up on the Meals Ready to Eat and filling sandbags so as to fortify your basement against the fiery arrival of Quetzalcoatl and his Army of the Undead.

But then the life of the suburban housewife has never been easy, has it?

Happily, the gigantic party at the very end of the year makes up for the various indignities you have suffered over the course of that year, such as the bald spots in your lawn, the rust spots on your minivan and the way your 7-year-old's violin practice makes you want to call the meteorite down upon the head of the person who wrote the "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star."

Here is the Aksaya Sandal from the Schutz ($185, Nordstrom.com), perfect for the celebratory boogying.

Ask the Manolo a question at manolo@shoeblogs.com. Visit the Manolo at shoeblogs.com.

Molecular Gastronomy

Transform your bar cart into something out of a José Andrés fantasy with the Cocktail R-Evolution kit ($58.95, Molecule-r.com) – it's a lot easier than scoring a reservation at the James Beard winner's molecular gastronomy restaurant.

Compounds and a DVD help you whip up cutting-edge, high-tech cocktails such as lime foam margaritas or layered martinis.

Take the class instead: Rogue 24's (Rogue24.com) resident gastronaut R.J. Cooper offers a class that teaches you how to use molecular gastronomy to make dishes and drinks ($200 per person, call 202-408-9724 to arrange).

Treats to DIY for

It's one thing to drool over the house-made artisanal holiday offerings at trendy restaurants but another thing to make your own Bavarian-style Cheese Curds/Lentil Macaroons/Bacon Marmalade. (They don't call them the culinary arts for nothing.) Still, whether you're looking for a last-minute gift for a wannabe Giada or a treat to whip up for a New Year's bash, there are a taste-spanning variety of DIY starter kits. "There's a desire for healthier, homemade products and for more economical choices," says Joe Bellavance, founder of Average Joe Artisan Bread (Breadkit.com). And if you give or get any of these experiential goodies, you don't have to tip or make a reservation. NEVIN MARTELL (FOR EXPRESS)

Bread Baking

Mastering bread is the final frontier of baking. That's because this ancient art is a difficult process where lots can go wrong (yeast dies, you're so knead-y the stuff gets tough). The Average Joe Artisan Bread Kit ($99, Breadkit.com) simplifies loaf-making until it's nearly dummy-proof via a no-knead bread recipe, measuring cups, recipe book and baking tools.

Take the class instead: L'Academie de Cuisine hosts a hands-on "Bake that Bread" workshop from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Feb. 23. The workshop includes how-to's for pecan sticky buns, baguettes and more. $85, 5021 Wilson Lane, Bethesda, 301-986-9490; Lacademie.com.

Jamming

Get in touch with your inner grandmother with Ball's all-in-one FreshTECH Automatic Jam and Jelly Maker ($100, Freshpreservingstore.com). Load up the Crock-Pot with fruits or vegetables, add seasonings, press a button, then go watch an episode of "Modern Family." You don't even have to hassle with canning your compotes, since they last for three weeks in the fridge.

Take the class instead:

Cathy Barrow (Mrswheelbarrow.com) offers a wide variety of canning classes (prices and dates vary).

Cheesemaking

You don't need a herd of cows and a cave to make fromage. The 30 Minute Mozzarella & Ricotta Kit ($25, Cheesemaking.com) from New England Cheesemaking Supply Co. includes everything you need to create some Italian favorites for your next homemade pizza.

Take the class instead: Edward Hermann teaches lactose lovers how to turn out their own chevre, butter and ricotta at Sur La Table Pentagon Row. $79, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Jan. 18.

Distilling

Home-brewed IPAs are so 2011. House-made spirits are this year's must-have for the bar you built in your basement. Er, we mean your man cave. The Age Your Own Woodinville Whiskey Kit ($150, Binnys.com) requires patience, but little else. Just fill the cask with the provided, white, un-aged spirits, wait for three to six months, then toast all your not-so-hard work with a brown whiskey.

Take the class instead: Catoctin Creek (Catoctincreekdistilling.com) offers a free Bottling Day Workshop (times and dates vary).

ready to rent

Geeta, Hush Supper Club's founder who goes by a single name, regularly hosts five-course dinner parties for as many as a dozen guests in her Shaw apartment.

Party Like It's 1,999 Square Ft.

Make holiday gatherings a wild success, no matter how small your space

Entertaining

Geeta is something of a dinner-party expert. The founder of Hush Supper Club regularly cooks up and serves five-course Indian meals (complete with drinks and storytelling) to a dozen guests — right from the comfort of her apartment in Shaw.

"My kitchen is woefully limited in terms of counter space," says Geeta, who goes by a single name. "So I've spent a lot of time really looking at the geometry of my space."

Before she begins cooking, she figures out which burners and prep spaces she'll need and when. She stores her many spices, dried goods and serving tools on stainless steel shelves (an Ikea find) so she can find what she needs with a quick glance. "That way, I don't forget what I have," she says.

She decorates her dining area with engaging trinkets and treasures (many purchased off of Craigslist, including a gold-rimmed, 3-foot lamp) that get her guests asking questions. "When people say 'I have a crappy old apartment or old space,' that's no excuse not to surround yourself with pretty things," she says.

Even without a lot of space you can host boisterous holiday celebrations. The trick is cutting down on clutter and making every available space — even spots that don't seem ready-made for eggnog and crudite — work for you.

Before your party, maximize your space.

Holiday Hosting

Party planner Rebecca Hoeckele, who heads up Celebration Sensations, advises moving your furniture out of the center of the room. Limit the number of chairs, she says: There should be one seat for every three guests in order to force (or at least encourage) mingling. Store table-top knickknacks in your bathtub to maximize flat spaces.

"Clutter is always going to make a space feel smaller," Hoeckele says. "You need to make your space easy to navigate so guests can mingle and enjoy the food and drinks."

Can you furnish your entire apartment for free? We'll talk to a renter who did just that, in next week's Ready to Rent.

Hoeckele recommends putting the food and drinks on different tables so you don't have a crush of hungry party-dwellers surrounding the sips and snacks. She even recommends staggering your party start time on invitations to avoid having too many revelers in a small place at once.

Think about how you can use what's already in your home in creative ways. Hoeckele once transformed a bookcase into a bar, moving books out of the way to make room for glasses, wine and an ice bucket.

"It's all about how you can

Organization is crucial to working in a small kitchen. Hush Supper Club hostess Geeta stores her dried goods, spices, pots and pans where she can easily see and grab them.

"Clutter is always going to make a space feel smaller. You need to make your space easy to navigate so guests can mingle and enjoy the food and drinks."

— REBECCA HOECKELE, PARTY PLANNER AND HEAD OF CELEBRATION SENSATIONS, WHO SUGGESTS MOVING YOUR FURNITURE AROUND BEFORE YOUR GUESTS ARRIVE

creatively use the stuff that you have," she says. "The smaller the space, the more you need to pay attention to detail."

There are ways to make even the tiniest of kitchens work for the ambitious chef who's promised a three-course holiday feast. First, be careful about what you bring into the kitchen. Things that take up space are bad; things that make space are good.

Leah Daniels of kitchen goods store Hill's Kitchen on Capitol Hill recommends investing in storage that can free up counter space for cooking, such as a wine-glass holder or a dish mat that folds up once you're done drying dishes. And buy appliances that have more than one function.

"Look for things that do multiple things," she says. "That's the way to make your kitchen work for you."

Even furniture can be transformed with a little ingenuity. "Cover your desk with a tablecloth," she says. "All of a sudden, you have a side table."

Christine Mitchell, 30, who likes to host "informal" brunch get-togethers, is an expert at making do in a small kitchen. This is some of what was on her last menu: Egg strata. Homemade bacon marmalade. Pumpkin crumb cake.

Mitchell is a self-described party enthusiast. "I love to feed my friends," she says. "Just getting people together is the goal."

Before she moved last month,

Mitchell lived in a tiny one-bedroom, where parties proved complicated.

"At first, I was very upset that I couldn't host dinner parties the way I wanted to," she says. But she adapted, crafting big buffet-style meals and letting friends serve themselves on pretty paper plates.

"People would sit on couches, on the balcony," she says. "It was very organic."

Even though Mitchell has more space in her new home in Petworth, she's still adapting things to fit her needs. "Sitting at a table or sitting on the floor do," she says. "As long as we laugh and enjoy the food or activity, that's what matters."

AMANDA ERICKSON (FOR EXPRESS)

When buying gifts for apartment-dwellers, take into account their limited space and nomadic lifestyle. These items pack a lot of style into small, affordable packages. 1. Scratch map: This map does double-duty: It's not only a stylish way to fill a blank wall, but it also helps your favorite traveler keep a proud tally of places seen. (Paper Source, $28.95) 2. Potted Plants: You don't have to get the usual holiday poinsettia. Just make sure it's easy to care for, such as this row of succulents in a wooden box. (Olive & Cocoa, $48) 3. Trays and dishes: Great for bringing organization to small spaces. We're partial to these blue nesting trays. (Wisteria, $49) 4. Throw: An ombre throw adds color to any apartment without taking up a lot of space. (West Elm, $49)

5. Travel Charger: Meant for travel, this four-pronged charger can cut down on clutter at home, too. Perfect for renters who have more gadgets than outlets. (Restoration Hardware, $49)

Belting From the Barricade

Every song is a showstopper in this uneven adaptation of 'Les Misérables'

Les Misérables (PG-13)

► Director: Tom Hooper
► Stars: Hugh Jackman, Russell Crowe and Anne Hathaway
► In a Nutshell: A film version of the popular musical set in 19th-century France that follows Jean Valjean, who is hunted by ruthless policeman Javert while the country is in the midst of political upheaval.

Film Review

There are moments early on in "Les Misérables" when viewers may feel like they're about to witness a bona fide disasterpiece, one of those spectacular miscalculations that can be almost as entertaining — almost — as a superbly executed work of audacious ambition and scope.

For better or worse, though, this adaptation of the mega-hit Broadway musical fits neither description, largely because it lives in that kinda-sorta, OK-not-great in-between.

Less a fully realized film than a strung-together series of set pieces, showstoppers, diva moments and production numbers, "Les Misérables" contains multitudes — not only in the form of a huge cast but in its own contradictions. If, by the film's inescapably stirring final half hour, even the most inured audience members find themselves weeping openly for the story's tragic heroines, plucky revolutionaries and idealistic young lovers, it's less a testament to Claude-Michel Schonberg and Alain Boublil's strident music and lyrics or Tom Hooper's wildly uneven direction than to the fact that somehow the wheels don't come off entirely.

But enough faint praise. There's plenty to cheer in "Les Misérables" (opening Christmas Day), including some genuinely astonishing breakout performances. Eddie Redmayne delivers the most moving and memorable performance in the film as the young firebrand Marius, who along with his fellow students is caught up in France's political upheavals in the 19th century.

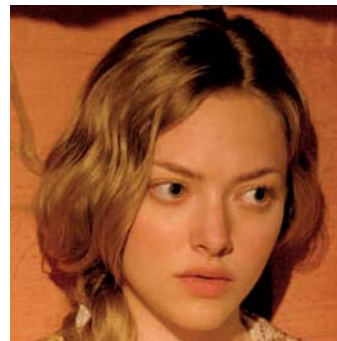

Based on Victor Hugo's novel, "Les Misérables" juxtaposes Marius' fight for political justice with the more personal struggle of Jean Valjean (Hugh Jackman), whom we meet in the film's opening scene as an enslaved prisoner. We also meet Valjean's nemesis, Javert (Russell Crowe), the vengeful police inspector who, when Valjean breaks parole, will pursue him obsessively.

BackstoryVibrant Vocals

"Les Misérables" director Tom Hooper made the commendable decision to have the cast perform their songs live rather than lip-synch to prerecorded vocals. This lends the film a welcome air of spontaneity and excitement (it's more an opera than a musical, as the film lacks any spoken dialogue of note). (TWP)

OSCAR WATCH
SUPPORTING ACTRESS

It's during these introductory sequences that "Les Misérables" is at its most wobbly, with Hooper editing frantically between and within scenes. Once he calms down he finds the film's rhythm, which at its most gratifying finds Hooper simply resting the camera on individual singers as they deliver the tunes the show's fans came to hear.

It's at just such a moment when Redmayne swings for the rafters, singing the mournful ballad "Empty Chairs at Empty Tables," an agonizing tribute to his fallen brothers. Redmayne also sings a delightful trio with Amanda Seyfried and Samantha Barks, who as love interests Cosette and Eponine display command of the upper registers the composers favor.

The centerpiece of a movie composed entirely of centerpieces belongs to Anne Hathaway, who as the tragic heroine Fantine sings another of the memorable numbers in a show of surprisingly few hummable tunes. Her rendition of "I Dreamed a Dream" — delivered in shattering close-up — is a melodramatic tour de force of vocal and physical expression.

But there are times when Hathaway's and Jackman's Broadway-baby voices sound brassy and labored, especially when Jackman shares a number with Crowe, who possesses the mellow, earthy tones of a crooner.

Helena Bonham Carter and Sacha Baron Cohen, as Mr. and Mrs. Thenardier, bring welcome dashes of slapstick humor and crass bad taste.

Those moments of levity are sorely needed in a production weighed down by a crushing sense of bombast and self-importance.

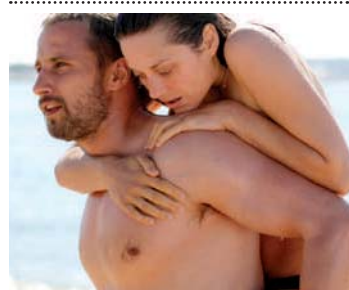

There's no denying that "Les Misérables" ultimately succeeds in gathering up the audience and transporting it on a stirring, swelling wave of feeling. But even when they're dabbling away tears during the last of the big numbers, they might wonder whether they're feeling less uplifted than run over.

ANN HORNADAY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

The centerpiece of a movie composed entirely of centerpieces belongs to Anne Hathaway, who sings one of the memorable numbers in a show of surprisingly few hummable tunes.

The Reelist

Love, Surprisingly

I bet you weren't expecting the best moment of your life. Bet your worst caught you off guard, too. Life's surprises are what the extraordinary "Rust and Bone" (it's in French; deal) is about.

Marion Cotillard and Matthias Schoenaerts play two people whose lives intersect only because of chance, and only because of pain. They are surrounded by violence, caused by an indifferent nature or cruel humanity.

Through it — because of it, in spite of it — they find small but blossoming moments of connection. And every one of those moments brings the risk of pain, because this is how things are with human beings: Our need for one another is so deep, while our capacity to hurt one another is so great.

In life and in the movie, out Friday, respect and friendship and attraction and love are links of the same chain, and that chain can wrap around your heart so tightly that you can't tell if what you're feeling is pleasure or pain.

In most movies, love solves a problem. "Rust and Bone" recognizes that love can make life harder, that it can do nothing to stop the cruelty and crap that life can hand you. All love can do is make sure there's someone next to you in the dark times, when the tears are pouring, someone who can remind you that the lights will come up, the sun will rise and, though you may be changed, you will stand again.

As with "Knocked Up," director Judd Apatow cast his wife, Leslie Mann, and his daughters, Maude and Iris Apatow, alongside Paul Rudd in "This Is 40."

Everyday Strife

For a Judd Apatow movie, 'This Is 40' is oddly short on laughs

Film Review

As unstructured as a sweatsuit, "This Is 40" nevertheless is a comfortable fit for its stars, Paul Rudd and Leslie Mann, who bring a laid-back chemistry and prickly energy to writer-director Judd Apatow's amiably angsty comedy about a married couple facing midlife. Playing slightly older versions of their characters from Apatow's 2007 hit "Knocked Up," Rudd and Mann bring considerable appeal to Pete and Debbie, a loving if bickering husband and wife, both of whom are on the cusp of 40.

If only the film itself were half as charming. Overlong and unnecessarily sex-obsessed, "This Is 40" feels haphazard and unfinished.

Taking place during the run-up to Pete's birthday party, the movie is built as a largely plotless string of vignettes — some funny, some not, some telling, some trite. When it works, as with a recurrent joke about Pete escaping from his wife and two daughters by retreating to the bathroom to play Scrabble on his iPad, the film feels honest and the characters recognizably neurotic yet fresh. When it doesn't, as with repeated references to Pete's and Debbie's struggles with his-and-hers addictions — his to cupcakes, hers to cigarettes — it comes across like any other lazy marital yuk-fest.

Otherwise, the movie is carried on the backs of its talented cast, including Maude and Iris Apatow — the director and Mann's daughters — as Pete and Debbie's kids. Megan Fox also has a funny, self-aware turn as a lusty saleswoman at Debbie's dress shop.

Sequels

Paul Rudd will soon revisit another of his beloved characters: Brian Fantana, from 2004's Judd Apatow-produced "Anchorman." Rudd and the rest of the Channel 4 News Team (including Will Ferrell and Steve Carell) return in "Anchorman 2" on Dec. 20, 2013. (EXPRESS)

The story chugs along on predictable fuel: Pete and Debbie's financial troubles, their sex life (or lack thereof), parenting headaches. There's no real crisis until the final half-hour, when Pete's birthday party finally arrives, bringing with it a bizarre, dark tonal shift.

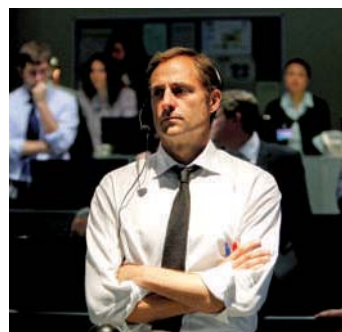

"This Is 40" is a good-faith effort at a wry and realistic relationship comedy. The sad thing is that the outtakes in the closing credits are the funniest thing about it. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Three senators claim 'Zero Dark Thirty' is 'grossly inaccurate'

In a letter sent Wednesday to Sony Pictures Entertainment, three senators say the movie "Zero Dark Thirty" is misleading and "grossly inaccurate" in its suggestion that torture produced the tip that led the U.S. military to find terrorist leader Osama bin Laden.

The filmmakers dispute that interpretation and encourage people to see the movie, already considered a top Oscar contender, before characterizing it. The film opens nationwide next month.

In the letter, the members of the Senate Intelligence committee — Dianne Feinstein, Carl Levin and John McCain — insist that Sony and its president and CEO, Michael Lynton, have an obligation to alter the movie and make clear that the portrayed torture in the hunt for bin Laden is not based on fact.

"The fundamental problem is that people who see 'Zero Dark Thirty' will believe that the events it portrays are facts," the three senators wrote. "The film therefore has the potential to shape American public opinion in a disturbing and misleading manner."

When Disaster Strikes

'The Impossible' uses the 2004 tsunami to explore family bonds in desperate times

Film Review

The catastrophic nature of the 2004 tsunami in the Indian Ocean that opens the fact-based drama "The Impossible" is rendered with nightmarish realism by Spanish director J.A. Bayona ("The Orphanage"). The wall of water looks harrowingly real as it slams into the Thai resort where the film is set and where tourists Henry and Maria (Ewan McGregor and Naomi Watts) are spending the holidays with their three young sons.

Equally realistic-looking is the shocking aftermath: Maria's bloody wounds from slamming into underwater debris; piles of corpses; uprooted trees and uprooted lives.

But what is rendered even more convincingly — and with heart-wrenching poignancy — is the anguish of separation experienced by Maria, who's swept away with her oldest son, Lucas (Tom Holland), and by Henry, who surfaces with sons Thomas (Samuel Joslin) and Simon (Oaklee Pendergast).

After the intense opening sequence, the film tracks the efforts of the family to reunite. It's not a momentous story about heroism writ large, but an intimate tale of the small acts of kindness and connection that can occur when people are most desperate.

The film is studded with many tiny, lovely moments. In one, Geraldine Chaplin plays a stranger offering comfort to Thomas and Simon, who have been relocated to a mountain for safety while their father looks for his wife.

Sitting under a star-lit sky, the woman explains to the boys that some of the points of light twinkling are from distant stars that have since burnt out and that some of what they're seeing might be light from something long dead. "How can you tell the difference?" one of the boys asks. "I don't know," she answers. "It's a beautiful mystery."

But "The Impossible" isn't otherwise interested in cosmic mysteries, or courage, or even the ins and outs of how (and whether) Henry and Maria's family survives. Rather, it's about how life can suddenly shift our priorities away from the petty concerns that preoccupy us. It's a movie that reminds us about what really matters, and why. MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN

Don't Want To Know Jack

Tom Cruise made a big mistake signing on to 'Jack Reacher'

Film Review

Presumably taking a long, self-indulgent glance at his What Would Clint Do? bracelet, Tom Cruise takes on the iconic role of surly vigilante in "Jack Reacher," resulting in a mismatch of wincingly epic proportions.

This is a movie designed primarily to put its leading man in as many clichéd, macho postures as possible. Reacher is a laconic Iraq War veteran summoned by an alleged sniper to exonerate him for mass murder. Working in cahoots with a beautiful defense attorney (Rosamund Pike), Reacher is a supposedly reluctant hero, but with his penchant for grandstanding it's difficult to imagine him turning down any opportunity to show off a nearly bottomless — and increasingly monotonous — store of Cool Guy-approved skills.

It's not that Cruise can't be That Guy. He plays a perfectly credible action hero in the "Mission: Impossible" franchise, and there are few pleasures as profound as watching him subvert his own all-American screen image (see: "Magnolia" and "Tropic Thunder"). But "Jack Reacher" is a wildly ill-advised miscalculation, with Cruise's virtually unstoppable appeal butting uncomfortably against Reacher's alternately cocky and downright crude cynicism.

The Washington Post Young Journalists Development Program (YJDP) and the Washington Association of Black Journalists present the Urban Journalism Workshop (UJW). The workshop gives high school students in the Washington area an inside look at careers in journalism. Experienced journalists from The Washington Post, the Associated Press, National Public Radio and other media companies teach UJW students the basics of real-time journalism. Three scholarship awards will be presented to seniors who excel during the workshop and demonstrate strong research, reporting and writing ability. There is no fee to apply or attend.

Fast Facts:

- ✓ Workshops meet for eight consecutive Saturdays from March 2 – April 27.
- ✓ Sessions run from 9:30 a.m. – 4:00 p.m. at various sites throughout Washington, D.C.
- ✓ Scholarships will be based on an essay, stories produced in the workshop and participation in all eight sessions.
- ✓ All students attending high schools in the Washington area are encouraged to apply.
- ✓ Applications must be postmarked or delivered by Friday, January 25, 2013.

Slave-turned-bounty hunter Django (Jamie Foxx) faces off against a plantation owner (Leonardo DiCaprio) in "Django Unchained."

Tarantino 'Unchained'

The filmmaker's new movie is yet another bloody revenge tale

Film Review

For his latest bloodfest, "Django Unchained," Quentin Tarantino largely replays his other bloodfests, especially "Inglourious Basterds."

In that 2009 tale of wickedly savage retribution, Allied Jewish soldiers get to rewrite World War II history by going on a killing spree of Nazis. In Tarantino's new tale of wickedly savage retribution, a black man (Jamie Foxx) gets to rewrite Deep South history by going on a killing spree of white slave owners and overseers just before the Civil War.

Granted, there's something gleefully satisfying in watching evil people get what they have coming. But "Django Unchained" (opening Christmas Day) is Tarantino at his most puerile and least inventive, the premise offering little more than cold, nasty revenge and barrels of squishing, squirting blood.

The usual Tarantino genre mish-mash — a dab of blaxploitation here, a dollop of Spaghetti Western there — is so familiar now that it's tiresome, more so because the filmmaker continues to linger over every scene, letting conversations run on interminably and gunfights carry on to grotesque excess.

Tarantino always gets good actors who deliver, though, and it's the performances by Foxx, Leonardo DiCaprio, Christoph Waltz and Samuel L. Jackson that make the film intermittently entertaining.

Foxx's Django starts literally in chains, part of a line of slaves on their way to the auction block. Genteel bounty hunter King Schultz (Waltz) turns up searching for Django because the slave can identify three elusive overseers with a price on their heads. Next thing you know, Django's apprenticing as a bounty hunter, forming a partnership with King that takes them deeper south in hopes of freeing Django's wife, Broomhilda (Kerry Washington).

The trail leads them to a plantation owned by Calvin Candie (DiCaprio), a dandy who trains slaves for barbarous fighting.

The premise offers little more than cold, nasty revenge and barrels of squirting blood.

There are morbidly funny moments as Django and King infiltrate the plantation posing as buyers. But the humor coexists uneasily and often clumsily alongside a story so charged with racial enmity.

Tarantino's solution to everything is to put guns and dynamite into people's hands, and while that might be good escapism in a gangster story, it feels flimsy and childish here. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

THE GUILT TRIP (PG-13, 96 minutes)

Anne Fletcher's lifeless comedy about an overbearing mother and her exasperated adult son features a series of clunky, episodic scenes of ersatz intimacy in which Seth Rogen — playing an organic scientist named Andy Brewster — tries desperately to play off of Barbra Streisand as she preens and poses for a camera she wants very badly to still love her.

As Joyce Brewster, a single mom who accompanies Andy on a sales trip across the country, Streisand asks the audience to believe she'd actually be wowed by a budget motel and the prospect of a free continental breakfast. That's just one of myriad whoppers that this patently dishonest, utterly undistinguished enterprise tries to get past viewers who might expect more. A.H.

1 THE HOBBIT: AN UNEXPECTED JOURNEY (PG-13, 170 minutes) "The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey" has finally arrived, not on wings of gossamer fancy but with a hairy-footed thud. As the first of director Peter Jackson's trilogy, it may well please the franchise's most devoted fans, who will no doubt savor the chance to traipse through J.R.R. Tolkien's imaginative landscape populated by dwarfs, elves, goblins, trolls and the appealingly winsome title character. But purely on its own terms, "An Unexpected Journey" can't be seen as anything but a disappointment, a dreary, episodic series of lumbering walk-talk-fight sequences that often looks less like genuine cinema than a large-scale video game. A.H. HYDE PARK ON HUDSON (R, 95 minutes) Choosing Bill Murray to play Franklin D. Roosevelt looks like a blatant case of stunt casting. But within just a few minutes of "Hyde Park on Hudson," it becomes clear that Murray makes an inspired choice, his ineffable appeal melding flawlessly with Roosevelt's own hidden depths. What's more, the political capital Murray has earned with audiences over the years turns out to be crucial in this alternately charming and unsettling story, which transpires over a pivotal summer weekend in 1939, when Britain's King George VI visited FDR's Hudson Valley estate in order to gain the U.S. president's support in the coming war. That also was a time when Roosevelt was pursuing one of a number of extramarital affairs, in this case with a distant cousin named Daisy Suckley. A.H.

5 LIFE OF PI (PG, 127 minutes) The story of Piscine Molitor Patel, also known as Pi, "Life of Pi" begins with an Edenic panorama of his youth, which was spent in a small zoo run by his father in the former French colony of Pondicherry, India. When the Patels decide to move to Canada, taking the animals with them on a cargo ship, the trip is interrupted by a ruinous storm, resulting in Pi being thrown overboard, his only salvation a lifeboat he must share with the zoo's ferocious Bengal tiger, Richard Parker. A.H.

3 LINCOLN (PG-13, 149 minutes) A peculiar, powerful alchemy takes hold in "Lincoln," Steven Spielberg's masterful portrait of the 16th U.S. president.

Through that strange mix of realism, artifice, intimacy and scope that cinema uniquely possesses, viewers find themselves transported to 19th-century Washington, where Abraham Lincoln — portrayed in a surpassingly sympathetic performance by Daniel Day-Lewis — has just been re-elected to a second term. Spielberg infuses "Lincoln" with energy, acumen, surprising humor and the unabashed affection for his subject that most Americans will wholly understand and probably share. A.H. PLAYING FOR KEEPS (PG-13, 106 minutes) A dreary, dismally unfunny excuse for a romantic comedy, "Playing for Keeps" is an undistinguished, impact-free watch-checker that will soon be vaguely distracting transatlantic travelers who forgot to carry on their iPads. As a former soccer star roped into coaching his son's amateur team, Gerard Butler turns on his native Scottish brogue and unshaven "charm" in fending off the advances of the various soccer moms who throw themselves at him with libidinous abandon. This clunky by-the-numbers place-holder serves to remind us all what dreck Hollywood is capable of pawning off on unsuspecting audiences. A.H. RED DAWN (PG-13, 94 minutes) There's good news and bad news about "Red Dawn," a remake of the 1984 action film about high school kids from the American heartland forced to become guerrilla warriors when their small town is invaded by foreign troops. This amped-up retread, which substitutes North Korean soldiers for the original Soviet bad guy, is a big improvement. The bad news: That's not saying much. Jed, a brooding Marine on home leave, is left in charge of his brother Matt and several of Matt's teenage friends. Jed quickly recruits the kids to the cause of resistance, and the rest of the film is spent showing their training and tactics. M.O.

2 RISE OF THE GUARDIANS (PG, 97 minutes) The arrival of the bogeyman, known as Pitch Black (Jude Law), sets the story in motion. Pitch is the bringer of nightmares. His resurgence mobilizes the Guardians — Santa Claus, the Easter Bunny, the Tooth Fairy and the Sandman — who must accept the help of the untested and somewhat irresponsible young fifth spirit, Jack Frost. The movie may not have been on your Christmas list, but with its fresh take on the power of myths, it is one present you won't want to return. M.O. SILVER LININGS PLAYBOOK

(R, 117 minutes) As the movie opens, Pat Solitano (Bradley Cooper) is being discharged from a psychiatric facility, having been sent there after an incident involving his estranged wife. Meanwhile, he meets Tiffany (Jennifer Lawrence), a sharp-tongued young widow with an acute nonsense-detector and a knack for brutal honesty equaled only by Pat's own impulsive, socially disastrous candor. From the moment they meet and compare medication history, Pat and Tiffany settle into a staccato, argumentative rhythm. A.H.

4 SKYFALL (PG-13, 145 minutes) To succeed, a James Bond movie must traffic in equal parts sophistication and pure preposterousness, a winking willingness not to take itself so very seriously, but with writing, acting and production values of the highest order. All of those elements are on hand in "Skyfall," which at the outset finds Bond (Daniel Craig) in Istanbul, pursuing a bad guy through bazaars and over rooftops in a ludicrous motorcycle chase that at one point finds Bond making a wittily blasé entrance into a moving train car. That episode will somehow go all pear-shaped, though, sending Bond into something of an existential spiral. A.H.

THE TWILIGHT SAGA: BREAKING DAWN — PART 2 (PG-13, 116 minutes) For those with no vested interest in this protracted and supernatural soap opera, this will be, unsurprisingly, a silly and somewhat cheesily made waste of time. It opens with our once-mortal heroine, Bella (Kristen Stewart), who has just given birth to a half-human, half-vampire baby, Renesmee, with her new, undead husband, Edward (Robert Pattinson). The story clicks in after word reaches the Volturi — the vampire world's governing elite — that Renesmee may be a vampire baby who threatens to expose their carefully hidden vampire subculture. As Aro, the leader of the Volturi, Michael Sheen is a rare delight as he attempts to determine whether Edward and his family must be punished and Renesmee destroyed. It ain't much, but it passes for drama — if by "drama" you mean a climactic showdown in a field of snow. M.O.

WRECK-IT RALPH (PG, 93 minutes) The 3-D animated comedy is the story of a goofy bad guy out of a retro arcade game who "game jumps," leaving his cloistered universe in search of fulfillment in other games. It's a clever and original idea, but the narrative itself is overly busy, noisy and unengaging, with little of the heart that won viewers over in the "Toy Story" franchise. In the title role of a hulking destroyer who dreams of becoming a hero, John C. Reilly manages to evoke the pathos of an outsider. And Sarah Silverman is pretty perfect as Vanellope von Schweetz, a tomboyish pre-adolescent driver in a kiddie drag-racing game. Like Ralph, Vanellope aspires to video-game greatness. Their friendship is what ultimately drives the movie. M.O.

JILL NEWMAN PRODUCTIONS

1 Born This Way
Amel Larrieux grew up in a building full of artists in New York's West Village, constantly surrounded by people who made a living from their creative talents. No wonder she formed a band (Groove Theory, which gave her a gold record by the age of 23) and then struck out on her own in the R&B world. The Howard Theatre, 620 T St. NW; Fri., 8 p.m., $40; 202-803-2899, Thehowardtheatre.com. (Shaw)

2 The Cheapest Laughs Around
Frequent DC Improv host and D.C.-area comic Tyler Richardson emcees the State Theatre's $5 Comedy Night — a chance to see a group of local comedians (including Sara Armour) for less than the cost of one cup of Starbucks' new Costa Rica Finca Palmilera coffee ($7! Yikes). State Theatre, 220 N. Washington St., Falls Church; Sat., 8 p.m., $5; 703-237-0300, Thestatetheatre.com.

3 Every Time a Bell Rings ...
Tiny Fairfax company Hub Theatre made a huge splash earlier this year when it won the Helen Hayes Award for Outstanding New Play. It's offering a new spin on a chestnut with a one-man version of existential-crisis-disguised-as-holiday-classic "It's a Wonderful Life," starring local actor Jason Lott, who also co-wrote it. H Street Playhouse, 1365 H St. NE; through Dec. 30, $20-$35; 202-241-2539 Theateralliance.com.

NBC dusts off a 1962 'Mister Magoo' special for a prime-time airing

Cartoons
SAT
8:00

NBC reaches back in television history to broadcast the 1962 animated holiday musical "Mister Magoo's Christmas Carol." A favorite for years, it fell into relative obscurity in recent decades, showing up sporadically on the Cartoon Network. NBC hasn't aired "Magoo" in prime time since 1967.

Arguably, one of the reasons this special disappeared is Magoo himself. There's something a tad antique about the myopic character. Most of the cartoon's jokes were at the expense of his visual handicap. And this special features a character even older than Magoo. Tiny Tim is "played" by the character Gerald McBoing Boing, a popular cartoon dating back to 1950.

"Magoo," in which the character plays Ebenezer Scrooge, is notable for being the very first Christmas program made for television. Its success paved the way for "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" (1964) and "A Charlie Brown Christmas" (1965). It's also the only one with the heart and soul of a Broadway musical.

The songs range from the celebratory ("The Lord's Bright Blessing") to the sad and poignant ("Alone in the World"). The music was by Jule Styne and the lyrics by Bob Merrill. Once finished with "Magoo," they collaborated on "Funny Girl."

While the notion of a cartoon version of a serious Broadway musical may have been avant-garde in 1962, it's now come full circle. After all, an entire generation was raised on the Disney animated musicals of the 1980s and '90s.

Horoscope

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You're eager to have one or two of your dreams come true, and today you can do something to see that progress is made in that direction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are not stuck in a rut, but neither are you working at peak efficiency or creativity. Something is slowing you down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may feel as though you are further from what is important to you today than you would prefer. This can be reversed.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You must keep an eye on things as they develop. Are you willing to judge yourself honestly, every step of the way?

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your interaction with others will be colored by your inability to see things in a modern way. It's time for an upgrade!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone much younger than you will provide you with information you need to progress at a faster pace — and at a higher level of efficiency.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Are you really calling the shots? You may think that you're in charge, but a reminder comes to you that indicates this is not really the case.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can demonstrate significant know-how — though there will be someone who is able to compete with you head-to-head.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You mustn't give orders without determining how best to convey instructions and inspire those around you at the same time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You feel that you are being misled by someone whose attempts to rise beyond his or her station are causing you to react in an unusual fashion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your intentions must not be in doubt. Focus on those endeavors that come from the heart. Any deception must be avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can put the pieces of a puzzle together in such a way that others are drawn to both the questions you are asking and the answers.

Samurai Sudoku

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.
